

The Arbutus Review is produced by the Learning and Teaching Centre and the McPherson Library. It is an online journal with a small print run. The online version can be found at <http://journals.uvic.ca/index.php/arbutus>.

The Arbutus Review was created to showcase the articles, projects, and installations that result from the Jamie Cassels Undergraduate Research Award (JCURA) Program. However, Volume 3, Number 2 is a special issue that focuses on Indigenous governance. Adam Gaudry, a doctoral student and sessional instructor at the University of Victoria, approached the Learning and Teaching Centre to co-create this themed volume. His vision and dedication have resulted in this impressive collection of essays. We thank Adam for bringing this issue into being.

Publishing a journal is the work of many people. The following people have been integral to the creation and production of The Arbutus Review.

Teresa Dawson, Director of the Learning and Teaching Centre, who created the journal

Inba Kehoe, Scholarly Communications and Copyright Officer of the Library, who shepherds the online portion of the journal

Tusa Shea, Managing Editor of this special issue of the journal and Acting Coordinator of the Writing Centre

Laurie Waye, Journal Coordinator and Manager of the Writing Centre

Shu-min Huang, Journal Designer and Coordinator of the Writing Centre

The Learning & Teaching Centre Team
University of Victoria

All submissions are reviewed blind by two readers. These readers are graduate students, researchers, instructors, and emeriti from the University of Victoria. We thank them for their very valuable contributions to The Arbutus Review.

Kelly Aguirre, Political Science, University of Victoria

Dr. Chris Andersen, Faculty of Native Studies, University of Alberta

Aimée Craft, Law Alumna, University of Victoria

Lindsay Delaronde, Visual Arts Alumna, University of Victoria

Dr. Robert L.A. Hancock, LE, NONET, University of Victoria

Robyn Heaslip, Indigenous Governance, University of Victoria

Damien Lee, Native Studies, University of Manitoba

Daniel Morley Johnson, Comparative Literature Program/Faculty of Native Studies, University of Alberta

Angela Polifroni, Indigenous Governance, University of Victoria

Kerry Sloan, Law, University of Victoria

Eva Jewell, Indigenous Governance Alumna, University of Victoria

Gina Starblanket, Office of Indigenous Affairs, University of Victoria

Dana Wesley, Gender Studies, Queen's University

Thanks are also given to Timothy Smith, Political Science, University of Victoria, for his assistance copy editing and proofreading.