libraries. Sen. Pressler defined "entities providing not-for-profit bibliographic services" as library services provided by public, academic, school, and medical libraries and cooperative library networks as defined by several federal statutes.

Although the Senate did not get a chance to consider the amendment, it services to focus congressional attention on library uses of telecommunications and the increased costs libraries face from access charges and pending tariffs. Sen. Pressler intends to pursue the issue on another vehicle, if possible.

ANSS Members— Who They Are and Where They're Going

ACRL's Anthropology and Sociology Section recently conducted a survey of its members. The questionnaire was designed to determine the educational background of section members, a composite of members' responsibilities, and guidelines for future directions that the section might take. Out of the 142 respondents, 94% have library science degrees, while 58% have additional higher degrees (master's or Ph.D.), largely in social science disciplines. Professional responsibilities for most members include reference, online searching, bibliographic instruction, collection development, and faculty liaison work.

The membership indicated several directions they wish the section to take. Publications about anthropology and sociology literature ranked highest, along with the development of programs at ALA meetings. Contact with publishers of various reference tools was also deemed important.

The results of the survey were reported to the ANSS Executive Committee at their Midwinter meeting. It was noted that the current efforts of section committees are very much in keeping with the priorities expressed by ANSS members.—Patricia Ward Silvernail, Chair, Anthropology and Sociology Section.

LAMA PRECONFERENCE ON LIBRARY BUILDINGS

The Building and Equipment Section of the ALA Library Administration and Management Association is holding a 2-day preconference on planning library buildings in Dallas on June 20-22, 1984. The preconference, entitled "Planning Library Buildings: From Decision to Design," is co-sponsored by ACRL.

The program will be directed at individuals with limited or no exposure to building planning activities, but it may also serve as a refresher for those without recent experience. It will include individual and panel presentations by experienced library building and planning professionals including Raymond Holt, Frazer Poole, Richard Waters, David Kaser, and others. LAMA also plans a behind-the-scenes tour of the new $42.7 million, 650,000 square foot Dallas Public Library.

The preconference is dedicated to Keyes D. Metcalf, a major contributor to excellence in academic library building planning, who died last November.

Registration is limited to 200 participants. The fee, which includes a banquet reception, is $100 for LAMA or ACRL members, $125 for other ALA members, and $150 for non-ALA members. Deadline for registration is June 8. No refunds will be given after June 15. Space permitting, on-site registrations will be accepted. Statistics Update

William Yount, reference librarian at the Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Deerfield, Illinois, has written with information on statistical sources for theological libraries. The Association of Theological Schools publishes an annual Directory, which contains information about the size of member library collections, and an annual Fact Book on Theological Education, which contains data on library staff, staff compensation, etc. These publications are available from the Association of Theological Schools, P.O. Box 130, Vandalia, OH 45377. For a source on some very esoteric statistics, see the Directory and Survey of Theological Schools in Asia, published by the Asia Theological Association, P.O. Box 1477, Taichung, Taiwan ROC 400.

Many of you have seen in recent issues of the Chronicle of Higher Education advertisements for the Chronicle Data Service in Boulder, Colorado. According to John Minter, director of this company, Chronicle Data Service will not be collecting any data themselves but will make available statistics collected by other agencies.

Also, the ALA Office for Research has published Sources of Library Statistics, 1972-1982, by Mary Jo Lynch (48 pages, 1983). The chapter that describes college and university library statistics supplements the list that appeared in C&RL News, July/August 1983, while the other chapters on public, school, special, and foreign library statistics are also of interest. It is available from ALA Publishing at a cost of $7.95.—Sandy Whiteley, ACRL Program Officer.
