• The University of Florida's Baldwin Library, Gainesville, has completed its imprint catalog for books in English before 1900 primarily for children, some 40,000 of which are held by the library. Although an index to the collection was published by G.K. Hall in 1981, the Baldwin Library has maintained chronological, imprint, and added entry files for all books added since. The files have proven useful in checking catalogs and bibliographies by imprint and in studying specific publishing houses, e.g., Darton, Tabart, Partridge, and Mahlon Day. Anyone compiling bibliographies of publishers before 1900 may wish to query Baldwin even though the focus is on popular materials and not primarily children's books. ■■

JAMES H. BILLINGTON, director of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars since 1973, was confirmed by Congress on July 24 as the 13th Librarian of Congress. He takes over from Daniel Boorstin and will assume his duties in late September. A native of Pennsylvania, Billington was valedictorian of the undergraduate class at Princeton in 1950 and was designated a Rhodes Scholar, receiving his doctorate from Balliol College, Oxford, in 1953. Following army service he joined the History faculty at Harvard University and moved to Princeton in 1962. In 1964 he was made a full professor. Billington is the author of numerous books and was twice nominated for the National Book Award. He has served on several editorial and advisory boards and has been a Guggenheim fellow, among many other distinctions. He has also participated as host, commentator, or consultant on numerous educational and network television programs and has accompanied several congressional delegations to the U.S.S.R.

LORENA FILOSA BOYLAN, assistant librarian for technical publications at Haverford College, has been named director of the library at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary, Overbrook, Pennsylvania. She is the first woman to hold the post.

A graduate of LaSalle University, Boylan received her MLS from Drexel University and began her professional career in 1977 as assistant librarian at Bryn Mawr College. She became catalog librarian at Swarthmore College in 1981 and joined the staff at Haverford in 1984.

DAVID F. BISHOP, director of libraries at the University of Georgia since 1979, has been named university librarian at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. He succeeds Michael Gorman, acting director since the death of Hugh C. Atkinson. He assumed control of the nation's largest public university library on August 21.

A native of New York City, Bishop earned a bachelor's degree in music and did graduate work in music literature at the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music. He earned his MLS from the Catholic University of America and subsequently studied mathematics and computer science at the University of Maryland, holding several library positions there from 1963 to 1974. Thereafter he was head cataloger and later assistant director of technical services at the University of Chicago.

Bishop serves on the board of directors of both the Association of Research Libraries and the Center for Research Libraries, and is active in many professional organizations, including ALA.

CHARLES D. CHURCHWELL, until recently dean of library service at Washington University in St. Louis, has joined the faculty of the Library Science Program at Wayne State University, Detroit,

David F. Bishop

Michigan, as visiting professor. Churchwell has had a long and distinguished career in academic library administration and higher education, serving as university librarian at Brown University before coming to Washington University in 1978. He was previously assistant director of libraries at the University of Houston and, earlier, assistant librarian at the University of Illinois. Churchwell began his career as instructor of library services at Prairie View A&M College and has also served as a reference librarian in the New York Public Library system.

Born in Florida, Churchwell received his bachelor's degree from Morehouse College, his MLS from Atlanta University, and his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois. He has published numerous anthologized articles and has conducted seminars at the Universities of Rhode Island, Michigan, and North Carolina. Churchwell has served in numerous advisory capacities, including as a member of the boards of the Center for Research Libraries and the Research Libraries group, and as chairman of the Board of Directors of the New England Library Network. He has also been a member of several federal expert review panels and is a member of the NAACP and ALA.

WILLIAM E. HANNAFORD JR., director of the library at Castleton State College in Vermont, has been named professor of philosophy and director of the library at Albright College, Pennsylvania.

A 1966 graduate of the University of New Hampshire, Hannaford has a master's degree (1970) and a Ph.D. (1972) in philosophy from the University of Colorado and an MLS from the University of Illinois. He also served in the Marine Corps for four years. Hannaford was head of collection development at Middlebury College and from 1975 to 1978 was humanities bibliographer and assistant dean for collection development at the University of New Mexico. He has been a philosophy professor at Illinois State University and a visiting lecturer in the Graduate School of Library and Information Science at the University of Illinois.

Hannaford's published works include two books, several monographs and bibliographies, and numerous articles and papers. He is a regular reviewer for Choice and College & Research Libraries and is presently at work on a book on collection development in college libraries.

MARIANNE I. GAUNT has been named director of the Archibald Stevens Alexander Library at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. Gaunt had served as acting director since February 1986.

Prior to her appointment as acting director, Gaunt was circulation librarian and online reference coordinator in the Alexander Library, the social sciences and humanities research library at Rutgers. She holds a bachelor's degree in French language and literature from Montclair State College and an MLS from Drexel University.

Gaunt has received several grants in support of developing inventories of machine-readable texts in the humanities and has published several articles and presented numerous papers on machine-readable texts and online service in libraries. She is currently project director for the Electronic Scholars' Resource Guide, to be published by the Oryx Press. Gaunt was the founding chair of the Online Committee of the New Jersey Library Association and is an active member of ALA, the Association for Computers and the Humanities, and other professional organizations.

RICHARD H. LYTLE, director of the Office of Resource Management at the Smithsonian Institution, has been appointed dean of the College of Information Studies at Drexel University, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Lytle, a specialist in information resource management and archives and records management, joined the Smithsonian in 1969 as director of archives and records management, a position he held until 1982, when he established the institution's information resource management program and became its director. Lytle subsequently implemented a data administration program, designed institution-wide systems architecture, began a long-term local area network, installed a library automation system, and established an information center.

Holder of a bachelor's degree in history from Rice University (1959), a master's degree in history from Washington University (1962), and an MLS (1976) and Ph.D. (1979) from the University of Maryland, Lytle has also taught European and American history at Washington University, where, as at Rice, he established an archival program. He has worked as an information management consultant for several associations and universities.

ROBERT R. KORFHAGE has been appointed chairperson of the Interdisciplinary Department of Information Science at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, where he has been visiting professor since 1986.

Korfhage was previously at Southern Methodist University, where since 1970 he had been professor in the Department of Computer Science and Engineering, serving as chairman during 1981-82. He received the SMU Outstanding Professor Award four times. During a more than 25-year career Korfhage has held teaching appointments at the University of Michigan, North Carolina State College, and Purdue University, as well as visiting appointments at the University of Texas at Dallas and the Universities of Western Ontario and Alberta.

Korfhage's research interests in information retrieval, data structures, graph theory, language processing, and artificial intelligence have resulted in nine monographs and more than forty published papers.

P. GRADY MOREIN, university librarian at the University of Evansville since 1980, has been named director of libraries at the University of West Florida, Pensacola.

From 1978 to 1980, Morein served as associate with the Association of Research Libraries' Office of Management Studies. From 1971 to 1978 he was associate professor at North Carolina Central University. In 1976 he took a year's leave and joined the University of North Carolina at Charlotte to design the Academic Library Development Program, a planning procedure for mid-sized academic libraries funded by the Council on Library Resources.

Currently a member of the ACRL Publications Committee and editor of the College Libraries Section Newsletter, Morein has also served on the Budget and Finance Committee and chaired the CLS Clip Notes Committee. He is actively involved in research and publishing and has designed a number of training programs, including an ACRL continuing education course entitled "Strategies and Tactics for Enhancing the Role and Position of the Library Within the College or University."

Morein holds a bachelor's degree in business administration (1961) from the University of Southwestern Louisiana, an MLS (1966) from Louisiana State University, an MBA from Nicholls State University, and a Ph.D. (1975) in management from Louisiana State University.

LYNN S. MULLINS, director of the library at Marymount Manhattan College since 1976, has been appointed director of the John Cotton Dana Library on the Newark, New Jersey, campus of Rutgers University, effective September 14.

Prior to her service at Marymount Manhattan, Mullins was chief librarian of the American Geographical Society. She holds a bachelor's degree in anthropology from the City University of New York, a master's degree in industrial and labor relations and an MLS from Columbia University.

Mullins is the author of many publications, including several guides to various map collections and articles on map librarianship. Most recently she was co-editor of a book, A Guide to Research on Women: Library and Information Sources in the Greater New York City Area, to be published soon. Mullins is an active member of ACRL and the New York Metropolitan Reference and Research Agency, and has served on evaluation teams for the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

GARY M. PITKIN, former associate university librarian for technical services at Appalachian State University, has been named director of university libraries at the University of Northern Colorado, Greeley.

Pitkin joined the staff at Appalachian State in 1981 and was involved in the establishment of the Western North Carolina Library Network. From 1977 to 1981 he was coordinator for library systems at Sangamon State University and has also served as serials librarian at the University of Akron and at Kearney State College. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee and an educational specialist degree in higher education administration from Appalachian State University.

Currently editor of the Haworth Press's Technical Services Quarterly and news editor of The Serials Librarian, Pitkin recently served as associate contributing editor to Library Hi Tech, published by Pieran Press, and has served as an automation and cost consultant to academic and public libraries, state governments, and private companies. An active member of ALA, Pitkin presently serves as chair of the RTSD Technical Services Costs Committee and was program coordinator for the Technical Services Costs Preconference held in 1986. He also serves on the editorial board of the LAMA journal Library Administration and Management.

CD-ROM in San Diego

The spring program of the Science and Engineering Academic Librarians (SEAL) was held at San Diego State University Library on Friday, April 24, 1987. The half-day program covered CD-ROM technology with both a user panel and vendor demonstrations. Sixty-nine people were in attendance.

The user panel of Peter Brueggeman from the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, Kathleen Dunn from California State Polytechnic University Pomona, Chris Bell from the University of Southern California's Norris Medical Library, and Beryl Glitz from the University of California, Los Angeles, Biomedical Library related experiences with particular CD-ROM products.

Brueggeman spoke about the Cambridge Aquatic Sciences and Fisheries Abstracts at Scripps as well as his experience being one of the first to receive this product. Dunn briefly mentioned DATEX and shared the Cal Poly Pomona experience with ERIC on Silver Platter. She reminded the audience that what they must look at when choosing between different vendors with the same product is the value each has added to the database. Both Bell and Glitz discussed the Cambridge Medline product at their representative libraries. The UCLA Biomedical Library had the product on a trial basis and the response from patrons was positive. At USC there is an end-user station near the reference desk, and the patron response there has been equally positive.

The vendors in attendance included Cambridge Scientific Abstracts, with both the Aquatic Sciences and Fisheries Abstracts and Medline available; DIALOG with ERIC on Disc; EBSCO Electronic Publishing demonstrating their Medline product, and ISI with the Permuterm Subject Index to the Science Citation Index. Both Wilsondisc and ERIC on Silver Platter were available for testing as well.

native of Vienna, where he earned his doctorate in art history and ran a family bookstore. He was imprisoned at Dachau for a year before arriving in the United States in 1939 and later worked at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the New York Public Library. At Cornell Reichmann was responsible for converting the library's collections from the local Harris classification system to the Library of Congress system, and for revising the acquisitions system. He was instrumental in improving the library's budget and was closely involved in the planning and building of the Olin Library. Following his retirement in 1970, Reichmann continued as professor of bibliography, teaching a joint course with others in the History of the Book and writing books and articles on various topics. ■■

PUBLICATIONS

• Analyses of Nineteenth- and Twentieth-Century Music, by Arthur B. Wenk (393 pages, June 1987), has been published as no. 25 in the Music Library Association's Index and Bibliography Series. This bibliography provides access to technical materials contained in periodicals, monographs, festschriften, and dissertations, and cumulates the 19th- and 20th-century volumes previously published separately. It contains 5,664 entries by some 2,400 authors and covers the works of 779 composers. Copies are available for $29.00 ($23.20 for MLA members) from the Music Library Association, P.O. Box 487, Canton, MA 02021.

• Bibliographic Instruction: The Second Generation, edited by Constance A. Mellon (204 pages, April 1987), uses as a framework the key issues identified in 1981 by the ACRL Bibliographic Instruction Section's "Think Tank." Its 15 essays are divided into three parts: an historical overview of the original Think Tank and its impact on the development of BI; the place of library instruction within the college curriculum, including the emerging theoretical base for education for BI and the increasing specialization of BI; and a reflection on the future of user instruction. Among the authors are Carla J. Stoffle, Cheryl Bernero, Brian Nielsen, Joseph Boissé, Joanne Euster, David King, Betsy Baker, Sharon J. Rogers, Thomas J. Kirk, Anne K. Beaubien, Maureen Pastine, Carolyn Kirkendall, Donald J. Kenney, and the editor, Constance Mellon. Copies may be ordered for $27.50 from Libraries Unlimited, P.O. Box 263, Littleton, CO 80160-0263. ISBN 0-87287-563-6.

• The Copyright Primer for Librarians and Educators, by Mary Hutchings Reed (60 pages, June 1987), is a practical guide to rights and responsibilities under the Copyright Revision Act of 1976. Written by ALA's legal counsel, the book contains particularly crucial sections on fair use, college and university photocopying and library reserve room photocopying, computer software, and how to obtain permission. Co-published with the National Education Association, the booklet is available for $7.95 from ALA Publishing Services, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611. ISBN 0-8389-0472-6.

• Current Approaches to Improving Access to Government Documents, by Carol Turner and Ann Latta (44 pages, June 1987), OMS Occasional Paper no. 12, was developed and produced under the Office of Management Studies Collaborative Research-Writer Program. The authors describe four approaches to access: through the shelflist and printed indexes, traditional cataloging, loading the GPO tapes, and retrospective conversion. The volume is available for $15.00 (prepayment required) from OMS, 1527 New Hampshire Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20036.

• The Encyclopaedia of New Orleans Artists, 1718-1918, edited by John A. Mahé II and Rosanne McCaffrey (465 pages, 1987), is a comprehensive compilation of information about all known artists and art-related organizations active in New Orleans and environs during a 200-year period. Twenty-three categories of artistic occupations are included (bookbinders, cartoonists, and hair workers as well as more traditional artists and engravers). Copies may be ordered for $39.95 from the Historic New Orleans Collection, Kemper and Leila Williams Foundation, 533 Royal Street, New Orleans, LA 70130. ISBN 0-917860-23-3.

• Feminist Bookstore News (vol. 1, 1976-) is a bimonthly magazine for an informal network of feminist bookstores, mostly in the U.S. and Canada, but also overseas. It contains reviews on a wide variety of recent women's fiction and non-fiction, and news about the feminist booktrade and book fairs. Each issue runs 88 pages and has a special theme (e.g., "Celebrating University Publishing" was the January-February 1987 theme). Subscriptions are $40 per year for six issues, and $75 for
