Puerto Rico network in the works

A computerized network of Puerto Rican Libraries (PRILINET) may be a reality in the near future. With the help of LSCA funding, the Puerto Rico Department of Education Public Library Services is conducting a one-year study to determine the feasibility of establishing a computerized multitype library consortium on the island. The consortium would be open to public, academic, school, and special libraries, and would be linked to other appropriate library networks, databases, and computerized library services elsewhere.

King Research Associates, Rockville, Maryland, is advising a committee of Puerto Rico librarians, headed by Dr. Luisa Vigo-Cepada, director of the University of Puerto Rico Mayaguez Campus Library, with the study.

The major objectives of the consortium are to share library resources and improve library services across the island through automation.—S.B.P.R. Informa.
