Profiles

ROBERT A. JONES has been named dean of university libraries at Seton Hall University, South Orange, New Jersey. He served formerly as library director at Bradley University, Peoria.

While at Bradley, Jones was the initial president of the first multitype library system in Illinois, and served on and chaired committees of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, the Illinois Library Association and the Illinois State Library. He has published many articles and papers and has lectured in American studies as well as librarianship.

Jones has served on the advisory boards of several historical publications and has been involved in the management of state, regional, and national meetings on library and historical subjects.

A graduate of the College of Wooster, Jones received his MLS from the University of Illinois and a master's and Ph.D. degrees from Case Western Reserve University.

HAYDEÉ MUÑOZ-SOLÁ has been named director of the library system of the University of Puerto Rico, Río Piedras Campus, effective December 18. She had been a member of the faculty of the Graduate School of Librarianship of the University of Puerto Rico.

Muñoz-Solá has a bachelor's degree (with a major in psychology) and an MLS from the University of Puerto Rico, and a doctorate in library science from Columbia University. Her doctoral study was the first in Puerto Rican librarianship.

While studying for her doctorate, Muñoz-Solá worked as a teaching assistant and later as a consultant for the Electronic Data Processing College of Puerto Rico. She has also worked for the Inter-American University of Puerto Rico, and the Catholic University of Puerto Rico.

Manuscripts needed for Publications in Librarianship

ACRL Publications in Librarianship, a series devoted to scholarly monographs in academic librarianship, has issued more than forty volumes since 1952. Many of these studies represent distinguished contributions to the history, theory, and practice of academic librarianship.

The editorial board invites authors of booklength studies to submit manuscripts for review. Proposals for manuscripts in progress are welcome and should be accompanied by an outline of the contents. The submission of dissertations is encouraged, but many will require substantial revision by the author. Manuscripts will be acknowledged and read by at least two members of the editorial board.

Manuscripts related to the following topics are particularly welcome: administration of college libraries; computer applications; collection assessment; management of reference services; self-directed studies; and staff development.

Relevance, lasting value, and superior writing describe the manuscripts that we are seeking. Please address inquiries and proposals for publication to: Arthur P. Young, Dean of University Libraries, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, RI 02881-0803; (401) 792-2666.

BIINDEXOGRAPHY

A Guide to People from Every Age and Every Field

Thorough and detailed, Biography Index is a comprehensive guide to the vast amount of information about notable and influential people which appears each year in periodicals, books, obituaries, reviews, and other sources.

An Index for Everybody

Whoever your library patrons are — professionals, students, scholars, general readers — Biography Index helps you give them the information they need.

In-Depth Coverage

Biography Index provides complete and accurate indexing of a variety of sources: • More than 900 current English-language monographs and over 100 works of collective biography each year • 2,600 periodicals of every kind • Autobiographies, diaries, letters, and memoirs • Fiction (biographical novels), diaries, pictorial works, and poetry • Juvenile literature • Biographical information from non-biographical sources • Obituaries, including those from The New York Times.

Organized for Easy Access

Biography Index offers two convenient ways of getting information:

- Access by Person's Name — In the main section entries are arranged alphabetically by subject's name, followed by occupation and dates of birth and death. Full bibliographical references to articles or books about the person complete the entry.
- Access by Profession or Occupation — If you want to locate a poet or a business executive and don't know the person's name, or if you want information on several people in the same occupational group, this alphabetical index can help you.

An Invaluable Reference Tool

Biography Index also offers:

- Complete Bibliographic Data — Citations include all the bibliographic information required to find what you need, including notations of portraits, illustrations, bibliographies, and other useful data
- Checklist of Composite Books Analyzed — An alphabetical list of composite books analyzed
- Key to Periodicals — A complete, alphabetical listing of all periodicals analyzed
- Name Authority Control — Guarantees that names will be uniform whenever they appear
- Title Enhancement — Clarifies the content of articles with ambiguous or misleading titles
- Currency — Published four times a year, following closely on the publication of the periodicals and books analyzed.

Now — Biography Index Available Online

Biography Index is also available online through WILSONLINE®, The H.W. Wilson Company's powerful, fast, easy-to-use information retrieval system. For more information call the toll-free number below.

To Order

An annual subscription to Biography Index brings you four paperbound issues including an annual cumulation. A continuous two-year subscription also gives you — at no extra charge — a permanent, two-year clothbound edition. An annual subscription is $75 U.S. and Canada, $85 other countries.

retire July 1 after 40 years of service. Lewis joined the MIT Libraries as a member of the support staff and was promoted to the librarian staff in 1955. A magna cum laude graduate of Calvin Coolidge College, she earned an MLS from Simmons College.

JULIA MOSS, catalog librarian at Sul Ross State University, Alpine, Texas, retired August 31, 1986, after 24 years of service.

JEAN M. RAY, map/assistant science librarian at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, retired in August 1986 as associate professor emerita after 26 years of service. Ray earned a bachelor's degree in library science from Simmons College, an MLS at Columbia University, and a master's in geography from SIU. She has been an active member of ALA during a fifty-year library career.

Deaths

KAREN APTON, library specialist in the Foreign Languages and Area Collections office of the Green Library, Stanford University, died January 6 following an extended illness. A native of Hamburg, Germany, Apton came to the United States in 1947 and joined the Stanford staff in 1964 as one of the first members of the newly created Resources Development Program (later the Collection Development Program), working in the Germanic Collections Office. She assumed temporary curatorial responsibility in 1967 and from 1975 to 1977, and earned a master's degree from the German Studies Department at Stanford in 1979.

RICHARD EVENSON, head of the Braille Development Section at the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped at the Library of Congress, and his wife Lorraine were fatally injured the evening of January 12 while crossing a street near their home in Washington, D.C. Evenson's guide dog was also killed in the accident. Evenson came to NLS/BPH in 1973 as an advisor, and from 1974 to 1984 was program director in charge of a variety of research and development projects, especially those related to braille reading devices and production technology. From 1977 to 1981 he served, in addition to his other duties, as an equal employment opportunity counselor and officer for the Equal Employment Opportunity Compliance Office. A leading authority in the United States on braille codes, Evenson was past chairman of the Braille Authority of North America, and received a Special Achievement Award in 1984 for his part in a group report to the House Committee on Appropriations. Born in Massachusetts in 1929, Evenson attended the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, earning a bachelor's degree at Harvard, a master's from Boston University, and an MLS from the Catholic University of America. He had completed the coursework for a Ph.D. at Boston University. Prior to his service at NLS/BPH, he worked in the Boston area for a research and development firm and as a bank personnel officer. Evenson was active in several Washington area groups providing service to blind individuals. He was on the program committee of the Washington Ear, a radio reading service, and chaired the advisory committee of the Montgomery County Special Needs Library.

FRANCES E. HASLETT, former acquisitions librarian and student center librarian at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died November 24, 1986. She was a graduate of Boston University and received an MLS from Simmons College. Before coming to MIT in 1962, Haslett had been a librarian in the Marine Corps and a schoolteacher in New Hampshire and Vermont. She retired in 1975.

AUGUSTUS FREDERICK KUHLMAN, director emeritus of the Joint University Libraries of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee, died December 26, 1986, at the age of 97. Born in Iowa, Kuhlman graduated from Northwestern University in 1916 and received a master's degree and a doctorate in sociology from the University of Chicago. In 1935 he went to Nashville to conduct a survey regarding library needs and problems in the universities and schools of the region, which resulted in the formation of the Joint University Libraries (JUL) of Peabody and Scarritt colleges and Vanderbilt University. JUL became the Vanderbilt University Library in 1979. The first director of JUL, Kuhlman built it into an institution of national recognition. Following retirement in 1960, he served as a consultant in planning new college and university library buildings and additions, and made recommendations for improvements at numerous campuses. Kuhlman was a member of ALA and the Society of American Archivists, and was a Fellow of the American Library Institute.

CHARLES R. LONG, director of the Library and Plant Information Services of the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx, since 1972, died August 11, 1986. Long received an MLS from Simmons College in 1967 and worked at Harvard University from 1968 until 1972 as librarian of the Grey Herbarium and Arnold Arboretum. He was a founding member of the Council on Botanical and Horticultural Libraries.

MARY MORRISON, reference librarian in the Cabot Science Library of Harvard University, died December 13, 1986, after a year-long illness. Morrison was assistant manager of an area bookshop for thirteen years before coming to the Cabot Library in 1976.

JUDITH SINGLETON, director of the Eighteenth-Century Short Title Catalog/North America project at the University of California, Riverside, died December 31, 1986. Prior to taking the position with ESTC/NA, Singleton was head of cataloging in the Lilly Library, Indiana University (1974-80). As secretary of the ACRL Rare Books and Manuscripts Section she was active at the 1986 Annual Conference in New York, and had planned to attend the Midwinter Conference in Chicago. ■■

We Asked Over 500 Experts To Define Physical Science. They Did.

In April 1987 Academic Press will publish the Encyclopedia of Physical Science and Technology.

This mammoth undertaking is destined to become the required reference for today's scientist, engineer, and student.

Among its compelling features are:

- Only scientific encyclopedia uniquely directed towards the dynamic physical sciences and related technologies.
- Detailed, in depth articles each at least 20 pages in length for the professional scientist – a depth unmatched by other scientific encyclopedias.
- Completely new — not merely a revised edition. ALL references therefore are entirely current – this is critical for such rapidly changing subjects as electronics, robotics and computer science.
- The quality and authority which has become synonymous with Academic Press publications.

- 15 volumes including separate index volume.
- Over 550 articles and 6300 glossary entries defining unusual terms. Lavishly illustrated and tabulated.
- An Editorial Board numbering 7 Nobel Prize Winners and numerous winners of the National Medal of Science. All authors are internationally acknowledged experts in their field.

Prepublication Offer!

For orders placed up to March 31, 1987, Academic Press is offering this complete technical library at an impressive saving of $700.00.
