Espo began his library career at Earlham College as a reference librarian with a strong focus on bibliographic instruction. He then became head librarian at the Dreiser Library, a part of the Indiana University Halls of Residence Libraries, and also spent time as the head librarian of the Living Learning Center at Indiana University. From Indiana he returned to Earlham College as assistant to the librarian during the period of time in which the librarian, Evan Farber, pursued work under a Council of Library Resources grant.

Richard W. Couper, president of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations, is pleased to announce the appointment of DAVID H. STAM to the position of Andrew W.

Mellon Director of the research libraries. The new director will assume his office in the summer of 1978. Stam will have full responsibility for the New York Public Library's twenty-two research libraries and special research collections.

Stam has been librarian of the Milton S. Eisenhower Library, the library of the Arts and Sciences Division of Johns Hopkins University, since 1973, where he also served as chairman of the University Library Council. From 1967 to 1973, Stam served on the staff of the Newberry Library, Chicago, as head of Technical Services until 1969, and as associate librarian thereafter. From 1959 to 1964, Stam served in several capacities at the New York Public Library, among these as assistant editor of library publications, and in the library's Berg Collection of English and American Literature. It was at this time that he assisted Elton F. Henley in the preparation of Wordsworthian Criticism 1945-1959, published by the library. The appointment of ANNE WOODSWORTH as director of libraries at York University has been announced by Bertrand Gerstein, chairman of the university's board of governors. The appointment is effective April 1, 1978.

Woodsworth, currently personnel librarian at the Toronto Public Library, will replace William Newman, who has been acting director of libraries since July 1976. In her new position at York University, she will be responsible for a system of five libraries (including the Osgoode Hall Law School Library, the Steacie Science Library, and Glendon College's Leslie Frost Library) with a collection of over a million volumes and a staff complement of 220, including 41 librarians.

A professional librarian for the past thirteen years, Woodsworth brings to her position at York University a wealth of experience in general library administration with expertise in such areas as budget and fiscal management, personnel management, collection organization and processing, and measurement and evaluation.

Woodsworth is a graduate of fine arts from the University of Manitoba (1962). She received her B.L.S. degree (1964) and her M.L.S. degree (1969) from the University of Toronto.

Her career as a librarian commenced in 1964 as faculty librarian for the faculty of education at the University of Manitoba. Since then she has served as reference librarian and librarian in charge of three branches of the Winnipeg Public Library (1965-67); reference librarian in the Science and Medicine Department, University of Toronto Library (1967-68); medical librarian, Toronto Western Hospital (1969-70); administrative assistant to the chief librarian and then head of the Reference Department, University of Toronto Library (1970-74); information systems consultant for the University of Toronto Media Centre (1974); project officer in research and planning for the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (1974-75); and personnel librarian for the Toronto Public Library from 1975 to the present.

College Library Standards

The ad hoc Committee to Review the 1975 College Library Standards wants to learn of problems librarians may have had in applying the standards in order to determine areas in need of revision. It would also be glad to learn of recently completed or ongoing research projects that might have application to college library standards.

Anyone with information or comments that might be useful to the committee is urged to write or contact a member of the committee: Arthur Monke, Librarian, Bowdoin College, Brunswick, ME 04011, (207) 725-8731, Ext. 281; Herbert F.
