• The Modern Language Association, New York City, and Indiana University, Bloomington, have initiated a project to provide an academic home base for one section of the MLA International Bibliography. The MLA/IU Cooperative Bibliography Project in Folklore is intended to improve coverage of folklore scholarship in the MLA Bibliography, already considered one of the primary research tools in folklore, by creating a central office and team of subject specialists working within the Folklore Collection at the IU Library, the largest collection of its kind in North America. The MLA Bibliography is a subject index to books and articles published on modern languages, literatures, folklore, and linguistics. It is compiled by the staff of the Modern Language Association in New York City with the cooperation of more than two hundred contributing bibliographers in the United States and abroad.

• Pace University has named its library in the Civic Center campus in Manhattan in honor of Henry Birnbaum, who has served as Pace's chief librarian for 28 years. The four Pace University libraries house 850,000 volumes and are located in Manhattan and at Pace's Westchester County campuses in Pleasantville/Briarcliff and White Plains. They serve more than 24,000 students and a faculty of 1,500.

• Texas Tech University Library, Lubbock, has opened The Vietnam Archive, a unit of the Special Collections area. The purpose of the Archive is to collect, house, and preserve information related to the American experience in Vietnam, with special emphasis on the experiences of people of Texas and the Southwest. Published material collected for the Archive will comprise items in all formats pertaining to the Vietnam War, including military, civilian, economic, social and domestic opposition, and including literature, music, and poetry. Non-print material collected will include diaries, letters, photographs, maps, sound recordings, film and video, oral history, scrapbooks, and albums.

People in the news

SALLY BUCHANAN, assistant director for preservation services and conservation planning at the University of Pittsburgh, recently returned from South America where she served as consultant to the National Library of Venezuela. Buchanan had been working with the National Library to develop disaster preparedness guidelines and training for libraries and archives in Latin America. Sponsored by UNESCO and the International Federation of Library Associations, this effort will provide education and training tools, especially for developing countries, to preserve library collections. In April Buchanan will travel to Leningrad to assess the progress made in the disaster recovery work at the Academy of Sciences Library in Leningrad.

IRENE GODDEN, associate director of libraries at Colorado State University, received the Colorado Librarian of the Year Award in recognition of the primary role she played in re-establishing graduate library education in Colorado. Since the last class graduated from the University of Denver Graduate School of Librarianship and Information Management in 1985, there has been no access to graduate library education in Colorado. Through Godden's leadership as chair and the efforts of those on the CLA Graduate Library School Committee, four years of planning culminated this September in Emporia State University's Graduate School of Library and Information Management bringing graduate library education back to Colorado.

KENNETH L. KETNER, Charles S. Peirce professor of philosophy and director of the Institute for Studies in Pragmatism housed in the Texas Tech University Library, was chair of an international congress honoring the 150th anniversary of Peirce's birth. The congress, co-sponsored by Texas Tech and Harvard University, was held on Harvard campus in early September. Four hundred and twenty-five participants from 26 countries attended and approximately 275 individuals presented papers. The congress, was funded by a $35,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities; matching funds eventually created a $50,000 grant for the project.

JOHN DAVID MARSHALL, professor, Todd Library, Middle Tennessee State University, Murfreesboro, has received the 1989 Distinguished Alumni Award from the School of Library and Information Studies at Florida State University. The award was presented prior to Marshall's alumni lecture titled "Lizzie Borden and the Library Connection." He is also the recipient of the 1989 Alumni Achievement Award from Bethel College in McKenzie, Tennessee.

PHILIP O'BRIEN, librarian of Whittier College, California, has been awarded the Besterman Medal by the Library Association (Great Britain) for his 1988 bibliography of T. E. Lawrence. The medal is awarded annually for an outstanding bibliography or guide to the literature first published in the United Kingdom during the preceding year. A presentation ceremony took place on September 26 at the Regency Suite of London Zoo, Regents Park, in London. O'Brien has been a T. E. Lawrence collector since 1962 and has written articles on Lawrence and on collecting Lawrence materials.

M. RONALD SIMPSON, head of the Technical Information Center (TIC) of the North Carolina State University Libraries, has been named one of the 1989 winners of NCSU's Outstanding Extension Service Awards. The Extension Service Awards are given annually to encourage and recognize outstanding extension services by NCSU faculty and staff. Similar to the university's Outstanding Teaching Awards, they honor superior performance in extending new information, practices or programs and encouraging or assisting in their adoption. A native of Fayetteville, Simpson is a dual graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, with a bachelor's degree in German and an MLS. While at UNC-Chapel Hill, Simpson also studied classical Greek, French, and Latin. Before coming to NCSU, Simpson was special librarian for six years at the Georgia Tech Engineering Experiment Station.

MARILYN VAN DYKE, assistant librarian for the McCartney Library, Geneva College, Beaver Falls,

Pennsylvania, has been selected as Geneva College's Scholar of the Year. Van Dyke, a member of Geneva's faculty since 1955, was instrumental in bringing Geneva's library into the computer age through the use of an automated information retrieval system. She received her bachelor's degree from Geneva College in 1954 and her MLS from Carnegie Library School in 1955.

BARBARA WALKER, curator, and WARREN WALKER, director of the Archive of Turkish Oral Narrative at the Texas Tech University Library, have been elected as the first honorary members of the General Assembly of the Ataturk Culture Center, Ankara, Turkey. It is the highest civilian honor that is awarded by Turkey. The Walkers are the only members from outside Turkey. The honor is in recognition of their valuable contribution to the knowledge of Turkish culture in general and Turkish folktales in particular.

Profiles

CHARLES D. CHURCHWELL, professor of library science at Wayne State University, has been named dean of the School of Library and Information Studies at Clark Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia, effective January 1. He will also serve at Clark Atlanta (formed recently by a merger of Clark College and Atlanta University) as assistant dean for undergraduate studies.

Churchwell has been a Wayne State faculty member since 1987. His previous appointments include: dean of library services at Washington University (1978-1986); university librarian at Brown University (1974-1978); associate provost for academic services at Miami University (1972-1974); director of libraries at Miami University (1969-1972); assistant director of libraries at the University of Houston (1967-1969); assistant librarian at the University of Illinois, Urbana (1964-1967); reference librarian at the New York Public Library (1959-1961); and library science instructor at Prairie View A&M College (1953-1958).

DORIS J. HULBERT has been named director of the Walter Clinton Jackson Library at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro. She had served as acting director since January 1989, as associate director from 1984 to 1988, and as head circulation from 1980 to 1984. Hulbert earlier served as head of circulation at the University of Delaware, and as head reference librarian in the Graduate School of Business Library at Indiana University.

Hulbert received a master's degree in English from Montclair State College and an MLS from Indiana University. She has also been a Fellow of the Elizabethan Institute at the University of Vermont.

JOANNE R. EUSTER, director of Rutgers University Libraries since 1986 and president of ACRL in 1987-88, has been named vice president for information services at Rutgers, effective in November. She will be responsible for the university's computing services and telecommunications and will continue to direct the university's 18 libraries. Rutgers President Edward J. Bloustein commented that the appointment addresses a growing need for coordinating the complex interrelationships between print information, electronic data resources, and telecommunications.

Euster received a bachelor's degree from Portland State College, Oregon, in 1965 and went on to earn an MLS from the University of Washington in 1968 and an MBA from the same institution in 1977. She received a doctorate from the School of Library and Information Studies at the University of California at Berkeley in 1986.

Euster served as assistant librarian at Edmonds Community College, Washington, from 1968 to 1973, later becoming head librarian (1973-1977). She was named university librarian at Loyola University, New Orleans, in 1977 and remained there until 1980, when she assumed the position of library director at San Francisco State University.

MICHAEL TERRY has been named director of the Asher Library at Spertus College of Judaica, Chicago. The English-born Terry has served as head of bibliographical services and curator of rare books, manuscripts and archives at the Annenberg Research Institute in Philadelphia since 1986. Previously he held positions at the Mocatta Library, the University of London; the Jewish Chronicle, in London; the Ecumenical Institute for Theological Research, in Jerusalem; the Anglo-Jewish Archives, at the Jewish Historical Society of England; and the Valmadonna Trust Library, in London.

A graduate of the University of London with a bachelor's degree in Hebrew, Terry is currently engaged in research on medieval Jewish thought. He spent two years studying philosophy and religion at the University of Oxford and completed coursework in librarianship at the Hebrew University.

Terry obtained his Jewish education at the Gateshead Talmudical College in the north of England and Yeshivat Bet Hakerem, Jerusalem. He earned a diploma in library and information studies at the Polytechnic of North London, serving his library internship at London's School of Oriental and African Studies.

Instrumental Sources for Music Scholarship

19th Century American Music Periodicals, Répertoire Internationale de la Presse Musicale and American Musical Theatre Documentation in the Tams-Witmark/ Wisconsin Music Collection

An extraordinarily rich, and in some cases rare, collection of music research materials are now made available to universities and conservatories throughout North America.

19th Century American Music Periodicals preserves an important group of periodicals covering the cultural life of America. The series is based on the bibliography compiled by William Weichlein. Most of the completed titles, available previously from OPUS Publications, now constitute the only complete version available to researchers today.

The Répertoire Internationale de la Presse Musicale indexes musical periodicals of the 19th and 20th Century. Microfilm for these titles, once offered by OPUS, will now be available in a continuing program from Chadwyck-Healey.

The Tams-Witmark Collection contains the piano-vocal scores from the Tams-Witmark Music Library Inc. (New York) collected in the Mill Music Library at the University of Wisconsin. The scores constitute primary research materials for musicologists, dramatists and students of musical theatre.

For more information, call or write today.

announcing an intensive Institute:

COLLECTION DEVELOPMENT FOR THE ELECTRONIC LIBRARY

integrating electronic publishing into the concepts and practices of collection development

April 29 - May 2, 1990

Sponsored by Albert R. Mann Library, Cornell University and
The Faxon Institute

Institute organizers: Sam Demas & Jan Olsen, Mann Library; Peter Young, Faxon Institute

Program: As information technology transforms scholarly communication, collection development librarians are called on to play a crucial role in academic library decision-making on electronic information. In plenary sessions, the institute will explore the implications of electronic publishing for library "collections" and how they are "built", financed and managed. A selection of workshops will provide participants with opportunities to put theory into practice through case studies and discussion. Workshop topics include:

- *Collection management and development policies for electronic resources;
- *Selection criteria for electronic formats (CDROM, computer files, online resources and micro software), and for selecting among formats;
- *Management issues/strategies: organizing for integration of electronic resources into library collections;
- *Mounting files locally vs. providing remote access: financial, technical and political considerations in providing patron access to numeric, bibliographic and full text files;
- *Financing access to electronic information while building print collections;
- *Legal and ethical issues: negotiating equitable access.

Location: All meetings and room accommodations will be in the new Statler Inn & Conference Center on the Cornell University campus.

Audience & registration: Administrators and collection development librarians responsible for determining the form and substance of collections, and for allocating funds to develop the scholarly information resource base of academic institutions. Limited to 90 registrants. The $325 conference fee includes registration, and all meals and housing.
