W. Lee Hisle

Maureen Sullivan

W. Lee Hisle, associate vice-president of Learning Resource Services at Austin Community College (ACC), is the 60th president of ACRL. Hisle has many plans for his year as president. "The members of ACRL can look forward to an interesting and eventful year. Next summer, at ALA Annual Conference in Washington, D.C., programs will explore the values of academic librarianship as related to the many facets of our profession. Individual programs will culminate in the President's Program, which will look at the issue from a broad perspective. In support of the ACRL Strategic Plan, legislative advocacy for academic librarians will be emphasized, in conjunction with increased interaction with the ALA Washington Office. Also, collaborating with other higher education organizations on concerns of mutual interest will continue to be an important goal. Planning for a Higher Education Summit Meeting will continue. Another important initiative for the association is the National Information Literacy Institute, which will eventually provide a major new education program for ACRL members. I am honored to have the opportunity to lead ACRL this year; I hope it will be a memorable and valuable one for all members."

As president, Hisle will preside over the ACRL Board of Directors and ACRL Executive Committee, chair the ACRL Conference Program

Planning Committee for the 1998 Annual Conference, and plan ACRL's major program at the conference. He will represent ACRL on the ALA Washington Conference Program Planning Committee, and on the ALA Planning and Budget Assembly, and will represent ACRL and ALA in their relations with other organizations.

In ALA Hisle has served as a member of the Council since 1994; on the ALA Standards Committee, and as its chair in 1995-96; and on the Committee on Organization. In ACRL he has served as councilor (1994-1996); on the Board of Directors and Executive Committee; on the Choice Editorial Board, and as its chair in 1992-94; on the Budget and Finance Committee; on the Standards and Accreditation Committee; and as chair of the Community and Junior College Libraries Section.

Hisle has also been active in the Texas Library Association and in 1995 he received ACRL's EBSCO Community College Learning Resources Leadership Award.

Maureen Sullivan, an organizational development consultant who specializes in service to academic libraries, has been elected vice-president/president-elect of ACRL. "I am delighted and honored to have this special opportunity to contribute to the leadership of ACRL at this critical time. I look forward to working with the many talented and dedicated member leaders in ACRL, other ALA divisions and committees, and other organizations to continue to strengthen ACRL's role and contribution to higher education and the advancement of knowledge and learning."

From 1983 to 1991 she held the position of head of Personnel Services at Yale University Libraries. Previously she was a training program specialist at the Association of Research Libraries. From 1979 to 1980 she was the assistant director of libraries for personnel at the University of Maryland Libraries. ALA committee service includes the H. W. Wilson Staff Development Award Jury, chair, 1985; Nominations Committee, 1986; Minority Fellowship Advisory Board, chair, 1989-95; Office for Library Personnel Resources Advisory Committee, chair, 1991–93; Hugh Atkinson Memorial Award Jury, 1993–97; and the CLENE Roundtable. In ACRL she has been a member of the Personnel and Staff Development Officers Discussion Group, 1978–present; University Libraries Section, Program Planning Committee, 1987; Professional Enhancement Committee, 1991–present; and chair of the Search Committee for the Executive Director, 1990. She has also been active in LAMA, as the president from 1988 to 1989, and a member of several committees. She is a member of the American Association of University Women, the American Society for Training and Development, and the College and University Personnel Association. Her publications include Developing Library Staff for the 21st Century (Haworth, 1994); Performance Analysis and Appraisal, with Robert D. Steuart (Neal-Schuman, 1991); and “The Changing Role of the Middle Manager in Research Libraries” (Library Trends, fall 1992). She holds a B.S. in history and an MLS from the University of Maryland.

The rest of the ACRL election results follow. The elected candidate is given first, with the number of votes received in parentheses.

NEW!

From the CQ editors of Washington Information Directory

More than 700 pages of essential details on international information sources!

CQ's newest directory is a convenient, one-volume ready reference on international information sources. Close to 4,000 entries profile and provide contact information for organizations involved in international issues.

Researched and compiled by the editors of CQ's acclaimed Washington Information Directory, this new directory includes U.S. based offices of international groups, giving a starting point in the U.S. for international research, including Internet searches.

The International Information Directory covers four basic kinds of organizations: U.S. government agencies, international intergovernmental agencies, domestic nonprofit agencies, and international nonprofit agencies. International Information Directory is divided into 20 subject chapters, such as Health, Human Rights, Science and Technology, and Trade. Each of the chapters is divided into geographic regions, and within each region, information is grouped by type of organization. Each entry provides a brief description of the group, plus contact names, addresses, phone numbers and, often, electronic and Web addresses. A subject index provides quick access to all listings.
