

Timothy L. Ericson, assistant library director and head of archives and special collections at the Golda Meir Library at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee (UMW), received the Academic Staff Outstanding Performance Award. Ericson has been an instructor in the School of Library and Information Science at UMW since 1989, and he has been instrumental in designing the school's Master of Archival Studies program, the first such graduate program in the nation.

Susan K. Martin, university librarian at Georgetown University since 1990, has announced she will leave this position effective August 1, 2001. She will remain involved in library and information sciences through consulting and teaching. Prior to joining Georgetown, Martin held positions at Johns Hopkins University and at the U.S. National Commission on Libraries and Information Science. Martin's major accomplishments at Georgetown include revising the library's organizational structure to respond to changing academic environments; instituting, in conjunction with the faculty, a collection development policy; developing an innovative off-site storage system to relieve the library's space needs; and overseeing $5.9 million in extensive renovations. Martin also played a major role in coordinating a consortium of research libraries in the Washington area. She serves on the Main Campus Council of Deans and on Georgetown's steering committee for Middle States self-study. She is also chair of an ALA task force to investigate and make recommendations on the establishment of an independent accrediting agency for schools of library and information science. Martin was ACRL President from 1994 to 1995.

Louis A. Rachow, director of the Library and Information Service of the International Theatre Institute of the United States, received the Distinguished Service in Performing Arts Librarianship Award from the Theatre Library Association.

Carla Stoffle, dean of libraries and the Center for Creative Photography at the University of Arizona (UA), has been selected by the Arizona Library Association as the Arizona Librarian of the Year, 2000-01. She has been acting director of the School of Information Resources and Library Sciences since August 1999. In this position, Stoffle addressed faculty and budget concerns that threatened the accreditation of the school. Her actions resulted in the ALA's Committee of Accreditation's withdrawal of a petition to have the library school's accreditation removed. Agnes Griffen (director of the Tucson Pima Public Library), who nominated Stoffle for the award said, "If Carla Stoffle had not intervened, there would be no graduate library education program available onsite to our employees, as well as to aspiring librarians in nearby states."

Retirements

Julita C. Awkard has retired, after 38 years of service, as university librarian at Florida Agricultural & Mechanical University.

Deaths

Perry D. Morrison, 81, retired science librarian at the University of Oregon (UO), died December 7. From 1949 to 1963, Morrison was head social science librarian at UO. He left there in 1963 to become head librarian and director of the library science program at Sacramento State College (now Sacramento State University). From 1965 to 1967 he was on the faculty of the School of Librarianship at the University of Washington in Seattle. He returned to UO as a faculty member in its new School of Librarianship, later serving as its dean from 1971 until 1973. With the suspension of the school, he became a science librarian until his retirement in 1982. Morrison edited the Pacific Northwest Library Association's quarterly from 1967 to 1972. He also served as president of the Oregon Library Association from 1961 to 1962. Morrison was published in many library publications and was for many years a contributor to Collier's Encyclopedia Year Book about Oregon libraries, enjoyed reviewing professional library publications, and wrote articles about local history. ■

Access

IDEAL licensing options meet institutional and individual needs and all users are invited to freely browse and search the journal tables of contents and abstracts or purchase individual articles on IDEAL. APPEAL (Academic Press Print and Electronic Access License) allows researchers, faculty, and students, within a licensed consortium access to full-text articles. More IDEAL licensing options are described here:

IDEAL Open Consortia (IOC) - is the APPEAL based license that provides the highest content value for institutions interested in a collection of journals. Institutions deal directly with Academic Press or through an agent.

Institutional Publications License (IPL) - is intended for institutions whose research programs are focused on particular areas. This model allows institutions to "pick and choose" titles for access via IDEAL. Access is regulated through IP address and concurrent usage.

IDEAL OnDemand - allows users not affiliated with an IDEAL licensed institution to purchase and download individual articles from any Academic Press or Harcourt Health Sciences journal. Review this e-commerce pay-per-view option at:
<http://www.academicpress.com/www/ideal/aboutOnDemand.htm>

Utility

IDEAL users can now benefit from comprehensive linking. CrossRef (www.crossref.org) links appear in articles throughout IDEAL and allow users to connect rapidly to cited journals from participating publishers. Link In allows you to move directly to volumes, issues, or articles of choice on IDEAL and is available at:
