PROFILE

RICHARD W. BOSS, director of libraries of the University of Tennessee, will succeed William S. Dix on July 1 as the Princeton University librarian.

Richard W. Boss

Princeton's President William G. Bowen announced that the appointment of Mr. Boss concluded a wide search over the past seven months for the person best qualified to direct one of the nation's foremost teaching and research libraries. Mr. Dix will retire as librarian and member of the faculty, Mr. Bowen said, "After more than two decades of building the resources of the Princeton library system and serving the larger library and scholarly community in countless ways, including a recent term as president of the American Library Association.

At Princeton Mr. Boss will direct one of the largest open-stack libraries, with more than 2,200,000 volumes in the main Harvey S. Firestone Memorial Library and with sixteen special subject libraries and two residential hall libraries within the university system. The library staff numbers about 300.

Mr. Boss, a 37-year-old native of Arnhem, Netherlands, and a U.S. citizen, received a B.A. degree from the University of Utah. He earned an M.A. in library science at the University of Washington and completed his Ph.D. course work at Utah.

He served in various capacities in the University of Utah Library, becoming its associate director and later acting director, before moving to the University of Tennessee in 1970 as director of libraries. He has also taught at the Universities of Utah, Iowa, and Tennessee and Western Michigan University and provided consultative services for a number of other institutions.

His service at the University of Tennessee has included membership on the Cultural Affairs Board, the Research Council, the Faculty Senate Executive Committee, the Faculty Senate Transition and By-Laws Committee, the Undergraduate Council, and Board of Deans. He also served on the Tennessee Higher Education Commission's Library Advisory Committee and the Advisory Council on Libraries of the Tennessee State Library and Archives.

Mr. Boss, a former president of the board of the Bibliographical Center for Research, Denver, is a member of the American Library Association, the Southeastern Library Association, the Tennessee Library Association, Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, the American Association of University Professors, the American Society for Information Science, and the Association of Research Libraries Commission on Access. He is president of Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Tennessee and regional secretary of Phi Beta Kappa.

Articles and publications by Mr. Boss include: ACRL Seminar on "The Changing Role of Directors of University Libraries," Association of College and Research Libraries audiocassette, 1973; "View from the Middle: Selling Ideas Down the Organization," American Library Association audiocassette, 1974; "Cataloging Cost Studies," Utah Academy of Sciences Proceedings; "Cost Studies and Performance Standards,"

Mr. Boss said, "The Princeton University Library enjoys a unique environment: its alumni and friends are library-oriented and generous with their support, and the faculty and student body make extraordinary use of library resources and services. It will be quite a challenge to develop a fine library in such an environment into an even finer one."
