OSCAR HANDLIN, the Carl H. Pforzheimer University Professor at Harvard, will succeed DOUGLAS W. BRYANT as director of the Harvard University Library upon Bryant's retirement in June. Handlin will assume his duties on July 1.

Oscar Handlin

Douglas W. Bryant

In announcing the appointment, President Derek Bok praised Bryant for his "invaluable contribution" in maintaining "the quality of our library system by providing effective leadership at a time of rapid change and severe financial pressure. We are all greatly in his debt."

Douglas Bryant joined the university library system in 1952 as administrative assistant librarian, following two and a half years as attaché in the American Embassy in London as director of libraries in the U.S. Information Service. He became university librarian in 1964 and library director and professor of bibliography in 1972. Under his supervision, the university library (consisting of roughly 100 subdivisions) grew from 7.25 million volumes in 1964 to nearly 10 million volumes, comprising the world's largest university library.

Author of several articles on the role of libraries in modern research, Bryant belongs to five professional associations, including the Massachusetts Historical Society, and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is a past president of the Association of Research Libraries (1969) and has also worked extensively in international library affairs. After studies at the University of Munich (1932-33), he earned his A.B. from Stanford in 1935 and his A.M.L.S. from the University of Michigan in 1938.

Oscar Handlin has taught at Harvard since 1939 and has held the Pforzheimer Chair since 1972. A Pulitzer Prize-winning author (The Uprooted, 1951), he has written and edited widely in American history and education and the social dynamics of immigration. He has received two other prizes for his books: the 1941 Dunning Prize of the American Historical Association for Boston's Immigrants and the 1958 Christopher Award for Al Smith and His America.

A past director of the Harvard University Press, Handlin serves on the Board of Trustees of the New York Public Library. He is a native New Yorker who graduated from Brooklyn College in 1934 and received his A.M. (1935) and Ph.D. (1940) degrees from Harvard. Seven institutions have conferred honorary degrees upon him since 1962.

MARIA GROSSMANN, librarian for collection development in the Harvard University Library since 1974, has been appointed librarian of the Andover-Harvard Theological Library and member of the Faculty of Divinity, effective February 1, 1979.

A graduate of Smith College with a master's degree from Radcliffe and a Ph.D. in history from Harvard, Grossmann also holds a library degree from Simmons College. She went to Harvard in 1956 as acquisitions librarian at the Andover-Harvard Theological Library; from 1961 to 1965 she was assistant librarian for cataloging at Andover-Harvard; and in 1965 she became librarian of the library, a post she held until 1973.

Grossmann has published many articles and book reviews on theological librarianship and on German scholarship in the sixteenth century, her special area of interest. Her book, Humanism in Wittenberg, 1486-1517, was published by De Graaf, Nieuwkoop, Holland, in the series Bibliotheca Humanistica et Reformatorica.

JEAN C. PELLETIERE has joined Union College, Schenectady, New York, as associate professor and director of Schaffer Library.

Pelletiere previously had been acting executive director of library/learning resources at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, having originally joined the University of Wisconsin in 1976 as assistant professor and head of public services. She has taught at the School of Librarianship, University of California-Berkeley, and in 1975-76 was director of special projects for the San Bruno Public Library.

East studies and an M.L.S. from the University of California-Berkeley.

She has been a television reporter for KQED in San Francisco, providing news analysis from Arabic-speaking countries; a photographer for the Milwaukee Journal, covering the Kurdish War in Iraq from 1964 to 1965; copy editor for Current Anthropology; assistant to the director of the Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research in New York; and an editor for several publishing firms.

Pelletiere is the representative of the Schenectady District on the ALA membership committee. She is a consultant on the membership committee of ACRL; a member of the steering committee of the ALA Women Administrators' Discussion Group; a member of the LAMA/PAS Economic Status, Welfare, and Fringe Benefits Committee; and a participant in the American Council on Education National Identification Program.

Dr. NORMAN D. ALEXANDER, library director at California Polytechnic State University at San Luis Obispo and long-time member of ACRL, was shot on January 15 and died on January 18, 1979. Dr. Alexander was active in ACRL on the Standards Committee and in ALA, having just been appointed to the Accreditation Committee.

Dr. Alexander received his MLS from the University of Denver and was employed from 1957 to his death in academic libraries from Centralia (Washington) Community College, Montana State University, University of Minnesota, Portland State University, Southern Oregon State College, and Cal Poly.

He was past president of the Oregon Library Association; past treasurer and president of the

Freitag Elected Chair, Art Libraries Society

Wolfgang M. Freitag, librarian of the Fine Arts Library, Harvard University, has been elected vice-chair/chair-elect of the Art Libraries Society of North America. Freitag is a founding member of this society, which is now seven years old and has more than 1,000 members.

Pacific Northwest Library Association, where he received an honorary life award in 1976; ALA Councilor and on the ALA ad hoc Committee on California State University Academic Status of Librarians (R. B. Down, chairperson) in 1970; chairman of the Oregon State System of Higher Education Library Council; and recently elected chairman of the California State University Library Director's Council.

He was active, concerned, and approachable.

His leadership will be missed.—Richard E. Moore.

EDWARD B. STANFORD has retired after thirty-one years of service at the University of Minnesota, including twenty years as director of libraries (1951-71) and six years as professor in the Library School. As director of libraries, he was responsible for the planning of the O. Meredith Wilson Library building and for the founding of MINITEX. Dr. Stanford has been active in the American Library Association, having served as chairman of the Board on Personnel Administration and as a member of the Council. He has also served on the boards of directors of the Association of College and Research Libraries, the Association of Research Libraries, and the Center for Research Libraries. He has acted as consultant to the Office of Education in its Higher Education Facilities Grant Program.

Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules

SECOND EDITION

Michael Gorman and Paul W. Winkler,
editors

A joint publication of the American Library Association,
the Canadian Library Association, and the Library Association

640 pages
Cloth:

$10.00

On its first publication in 1967, Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules was greeted as "the best Code we have, or are likely to have," and was soon adopted by libraries around the world.

The second edition of AACR consolidates the achievements of the first and builds on them to meet the challenges of development and change. In an intensive three-year project, two distinguished editors and an international Joint Steering Committee—on which the national library associations and national library services of the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom were all represented—have produced a revision that harmonizes the two differing texts of the first edition. AACR 2 incorporates the latest international standards, makes provision for the whole range of new materials and media now in our library collections, and takes notice of the impact of machine-readable cataloguing and bibliographic systems. There are adjustments to the text and presentation that nation-wide reviews by AACR users have shown to be essential.

One innovation is of particular importance: the rules for Description are presented in an integrated structure that provides a uniform basis for recording not only every known category of print and nonprint material, but those still unknown and uninvented.

AACR 2 can be the Code to take cataloguing into the twenty-first century. Order your copies now!
