

Lois Hamill, university archivist at Northern Kentucky University's W. Frank Steely Library, recently published Archives for the Lay Person: A Guide to Managing Cultural Collections. She has also received tenure and been promoted to associate professor.

Beverly Lynch, a leading figure in librarianship nationally and in Illinois, has been named the 28th Illinois Library Luminary. Luminaries, comprising the Illinois Library Association's roll of honor, are individuals who have made a significant contribution to Illinois libraries and have been recognized by their peers. Lynch was executive director of ACRL in 1972. Following that, she served as university librarian and professor at the University of Illinois-Chicago from 1977 to 1989. Lynch was president of ALA (1985–86) and twice served as interim president of the Center for Research Libraries in Chicago. In her career as dean and professor at the University of California-Los Angeles (UCLA), Lynch was also founding director of the California Rare Book School and directed the UCLA Senior Fellows Program. Lynch is the author of six books, including The Academic Library in Transition, published in 1989 by Neal Schuman. She has lectured and published widely in the United States, Europe, and the Far East in the areas of library management, organizational design, and standards for libraries. Her many awards include ALA's Melvil Dewey Medal (2012) and the Lippincott Award (2009).

Appointments

Beth Bidlack has been named director of the Burke Library at Columbia University.

Ed. note: To ensure that your personnel news is considered for publication, write to Ann-Christe Galloway, production editor, C&RL News, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611-2795; e-mail: agalloway@ala.org; fax: (312) 280-2520.

Brian Lym has been appointed dean of the Adelphi University Libraries. Lym most recently served as interim chief librarian and professor at Medgar Evers College and head of instruction and research services at Hunter College. Prior to joining Hunter, Lym was a member of the library faculty at the City College of San Francisco and at several community colleges in the California System.

Steven Mandeville-Gamble has been appointed university librarian for the University of California-Riverside Libraries. His previous positions include associate university librarian for collections and scholarly communications at George Washington University (GWU) Libraries; head of special collections at GWU Libraries; head of Special Collections Research Center at North Carolina State University; assistant head of special collections at Stanford University; special collections principal librarian of manuscripts processing at Stanford University; and project archivist for special collections at Stanford University.

Brenda Mathenia has been appointed university librarian at Thompson Rivers University in Kamloops, British Columbia.

Bridgit McCafferty has been named director of library services at Texas A&M University-Central Texas.

Joyce L. Ogburn has been named dean of libraries and the Carol Grotnes Belk Distinguished Professor for Library and Information Studies at Appalachian State University. She will begin her duties Aug. 1. Ogburn was dean of the Marriott Library at the University of Utah from 2005 to 2012, and more recently special assistant to the senior vice president for academic affairs at the university. She also has served as associate director of the libraries, resources, and collection management services, at the University of Washington; assistant university librarian, Information Resources and Systems, at Old Dominion University; and chief acquisitions librarian and head of the acquisitions department at Yale University. Her activities in ACRL include serving as president (2011–12), scholarly communications column editor for C&RL News (2006–09), as cochair of the Scholarly Communications Committee (2006–08), and as a member of the Choice Editorial Board (2000–04).

Mary-Catherine Oxford is now College of the Sequoias director of library/learning resources.

Gabrielle Annala is now business and communication reference librarian at Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

Jeff Barry has been appointed associate dean of university libraries at Seton Hall University.

Amanda L. Bena is now access services librarian/information literacy instructor at Frostburg State University's Lewis J. Ort Library in Frostburg, Maryland.

Brian Bouterse has been appointed academic technology librarian at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Sarohini Chabal was named educational technologist at the Center for New Media Teaching and Learning at Columbia University.

Therese Condit is now digital video specialist at the Center for New Media Teaching and Learning at Columbia University.

James Conley has been named media services librarian at Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

Martha Conway is now director of the special collections library at the University of Michigan Library.

Bret Davidson has been appointed digital technologies development librarian at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Trevor A. Dawes is now associate university librarian at Washington University Libraries in St. Louis, Missouri.

John Dorr is now assistant head of the Research and Information Services Department at Northwestern University Library.

Lisa Doyle has been appointed access services librarian at Le Moyne College's Norreen Reale Falcone Library.

Leia Droll has been appointed director of Friends of the Library at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Kim Duckett has been appointed associate head for digital technologies and learning at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Chris Freeland was named associate university librarian at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

Valerie Glenn is now government documents registry analyst in the Library Systems Office at the University of Michigan Library.

Lisa A. Hartman has been appointed reference/government documents librarian at Frostburg State University's Lewis J. Ort Library in Frostburg, Maryland.

Margaret Heller has been named digital services librarian at Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

Elizabeth Hitchcock is now associate university librarian for planning and facilities at Northwestern University.

Miiya Holmes has been hired as the technical services coordinator for library services at Texas A&M University-Central Texas.

Jacqueline "JJ" Jacobson is the new outreach librarian and curator, American Culinary History, in the Special Collections Library at the University of Michigan Library.

Jason Jeffries has been appointed coordinator of the North Carolina Literary Festival at North Carolina State University Libraries.

William Kent has been named digital resources reference librarian at Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

Erin Leach was appointed Durst metadata and cataloging librarian at Columbia University's Avery Library.

Rebecca Lloyd is now education services librarian for the Health Sciences Libraries at Temple University.

Brian Luna Lucero was appointed digital repository assistant at the Center for Digital Research and Scholarship at Columbia University.

Rachel Lux has been named instructional services librarian at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia.

Ellen Malezewski is now educational technologist at Columbia University's Center for New Media Teaching and Learning.

Patrick McCarthy has been appointed associate dean, Library and Information Access, at San Diego State University.

Sarah Morris has been named humanities reference librarian at Loyola University Chicago.

Allison Morrow is now communications and marketing coordinator at Columbia University Libraries.

Jamie Nelson is head of special collections and archives at the DePaul University Libraries.

Amy Nurnberger is the research data manager at Columbia University's Center for Digital Research and Scholarship.

Mohan Ramaswamy has been appointed associate head for research and graduate services at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Eli Gandour-Rood has been appointed science librarian at the Collins Memorial Library at the University of Puget Sound.

Ramya Sampath is now educational technologist at Columbia University's Center for New Media Teaching and Learning.

Charles Simpson, dean of Adelphi University Libraries since 2003, stepped down from this role to return to the faculty.

Gwyneth Thayer is now associate head and curator of the Special Collections Research Center at North Carolina State University Libraries.

Thomas Whittaker has been appointed head of media cataloging with the Indiana University Bloomington Libraries.

David R. Woken has been named History/Latin American Studies librarian at the University of Oregon Libraries.

Luba V. Zakharov is now librarian and curator at Azusa Pacific University Libraries in Azusa, California.

services and professor at the James E. Walker Library at Middle Tennessee State University (MTSU) has announced his retirement. Black started his career in the public library sector serving as assistant head of the Arts Division for the Rockford Public Library (Illinois). He moved on to serve as assistant to the dean and, later, lead of Personnel and Planning at the Ekstrom Library at the University of Louisville. In 1985 he was appointed assistant dean for the Parks Library at Iowa State University, where he also served one year as interim assistant director for public services before moving to MTSU. Black has been involved in library administration, organizational and human resource development, fundraising, and financial and operational planning in libraries over his career. He was one of the authors of the ACRL white paper Recruitment, Retention & Restructuring: Human Resources in Academic Libraries, editor of the Haworth Press book Libraries and Student Assistants: Critical Links, coauthor of chapters in two recent books—The Generation X Librarian, and Recruitment, Development, and Retention of Information Professionals, and author of a number of professional articles. He has headed or participated in a large number of campus committees at the institutions where he has worked, served as a mentor to many colleagues, and contributed on both the state and national level to the advancement of the profession. He is the recipient of the Francis Neel Cheney Award for significant contributions to the field. In retirement, Black expects to contribute to volunteer activities in his community and to focus on his side business, DADS2DADS, which provides a forum for improving the skills of fathers.

William K. Black

Judy J. Cater has retired following a 38 year career at Palomar College. Joining the

Retirements

William K. Black, head of administrative faculty in 1975 as a one-year sabbatical leave replacement, she served in a variety of positions as a faculty member, director, and interim dean.

Carol Lang has retired after more than 20 years at Temple University, where she has served as interim dean of university libraries for the past two years. She began her career at Temple as coordinator of science libraries and later served as assistant university librarian for organizational development and planning. In earlier years, she worked in the Ohio State University Libraries and at St. Louis Community College-Meramec.

Phyllis Self has retired as dean of Western Illinois University (WIU) Libraries after seven years of service. Self began her nearly 50-year library career at Black Hawk College's library as a student assistant. Later, she worked at the Moline Public Library and as a school librarian at the Rockridge district in Taylor Ridge (Illinois). Over the years, she served as the director at the medical library at the University of Cincinnati and as the director of the health sciences library at Virginia Commonwealth University. During her time at WIU, the university libraries have made advances in offering user perks, such as Malpass Mocha Café (a counter that serves coffee and food items) and digital workspace for students via the Digital Commons. In 2010, the WIU Libraries and various partners (including the Illinois Institute for Rural Affairs at Western) were awarded a consumer health subcontract worth almost $39,000 from the National Network of Libraries of Medicine, Greater Midwest Region. Through the initiative, "Building the Future with Community Health Information," University Libraries faculty and staff helped the citizens of western Illinois learn about and use the Medline Plus online resource, a free, health-information Web site.

Phyllis Self

Deaths

Edward R. "Ed" Johnson, 72, retired Doris Neustadt professor and dean of libraries at Oklahoma State University, has died. During his career, Johnson served as an academic library administrator at five universities: University of Colorado, University of Iowa, Pennsylvania State University, University of North Texas, and Oklahoma State University, from which he retired after 17 years. During his 40-year career, Johnson published several journal articles and two books. He was active in the Texas and Oklahoma Library Associations (OLA). OLA honored him as a Library Legend during the state's centennial celebrations and also awarded him its highest honor, the Distinguished Service Award, in 2004. In 1996 he was recognized as Administrator of the Year by the Oklahoma Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration. ZZ

Advertisers

AAAS	cover 4
Annual Reviews	381
ASM Press	357
Association of Research Libraries	375
Brepols	377
Choice	378
Counting Opinions	cover 3
Glasbau-Hahn America LLC	382
John Wiley	361
Lyrasis	349
Mango Languages	333
Philosophy Documentation Center	cover 2
Rittenhouse Book Distributors	337
Roper Center	385
University of Virginia Press	334