

THE IJAHP ROAD AHEAD

April 15, 2015

Welcome to our first issue in 2015!

This first issue is being published earlier than our traditional mid-year deadline because we are increasing our publication frequency from twice a year to three times a year. More articles are being submitted to our journal and if we want to publish the selected ones on a timely basis, we need to increase our frequency. This suggests that our journal is becoming more mainstream in our seventh year of publication.

As a way to thank our reviewers who have made this growth possible we have decided to recognize those reviewers who have been exemplary in terms of commitment and quality of their reviews during 2014-2015. The winners will be announced in our last issue this year. Also, as you may have noticed from the new logos we proudly show on the cover page of this issue, we are now indexed by Google Scholar, Microsoft Academic Search and the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ). We are also applying to Academic OneFile (Gale), EBSCO, International Bibliography of the Social Sciences (IBSS), General OneFile (Gale) and Copernicus. We expect to be indexed in most, if not all of these databases, within the next two years. In addition, as previously announced, we are using DOIs for all our published articles, ensuring that IJAHP articles persist in the digital world.

In summary, we intend to keep IJAHP growing not only in number of articles but also in quality and recognition. However, this is only possible if we can count on your collaboration as reader, reviewer and author.

Thank you for your assistance, and we are looking forward to our seventh year of publication serving the AHP/ANP community!

Very sincerely,
